GDPR May 2018

We are sure you will be aware of the new laws regarding data protection which have been brought in due to mis-use of data by certain companies. We have never been, and never will be one of those companies.

We hold names, address, contact details, emails and phone numbers on our computer system which is protected by reputable IT security products. This information is held purely to enable us the trade with you and has never been, and never will be, sold or passed to any third parties other than courier sub-contractors to enable us to deliver goods.

We do not use any information to actively market our products and will only send product information if requested to do so.

We do email all sales orders, invoice, statements, account letters, purchase order etc as a "green" alternative to the postal option.

We email quotations for services and or products only when requested to do so.

If, for any reason, the above, or part of the above is not acceptable to you, please call, or email to discuss your requirements.
